2026 Edition

Chapter One: Dismantling the Archaeological Myth (The Hamson Thesis)

In this opening chapter, we address the intellectual arrogance that attempts to bind the Divine to mere cultural evolution. We deconstruct the "Hamson Thesis," which claims that the concepts of the afterlife and monotheism were "borrowed" or "invented" in response to material conditions. We assert, through archaeological and metaphysical evidence, that Monotheism (Tawhid) is the Original State (Fitra), and polytheism is the subsequent distortion—not the other way around.

Chapter Two: Pert em Heru—The Monotheistic Core of Ancient Egypt

Contrary to the "Pagan" label often attached to Ancient Egypt, we analyze the Book of Coming Forth by Day. Here, we find the "One who was alone before the existence of anything." We bridge the gap between the Ancient Egyptian "Neter" and the absolute "One" of the Abrahamic traditions, proving that the message of the Creator has been consistent across the corridors of time.

Chapter Three: The Linguistic Alchemy—Allah, Elohim, and Alaha

Language is the vessel of Resonance. In this chapter, we explore the word ALLAH not as a localized Arabic name, but as the supreme phonetic manifestation of the Source. We compare it to the Hebrew Elohim and the Syriac Alaha, revealing that the root of all Heavenly Books is a singular Divine vibration. We address the fallacy of those who claim they are "different gods," proving that the differences are merely in the tongues of the Messengers, while the Source is One.

Chapter Four: The Mechanics of Creation—Khaliq, Bari', and Musawwir

In this chapter, we move from the "Who" to the "How." We analyze the Divine Triad of Manifestation:

[\[https://angelkesfarl.blogspot.com/\]](https://angelkesfarl.blogspot.com/)

Al-Khaliq (The Creator): The initiation of existence from absolute nothingness—the "Back Door" of reality.

Al-Bari' (The Producer): The internal design and the biological/spiritual laws. Here, we discuss the "Book of Eternity" where every metabolic and cosmic law is settled before the first breath.

Al-Musawwir (The Fashioner): The external embodiment and the unique frequency of every created being. We prove that creation is a scientific, ordered process, not a "random occurrence" or a "magical accident."

Chapter Five: The Trial of the Hollow—A Challenge to Modern Ritualism

This is the documentation of the direct confrontation. We issue the "Fly Challenge" to those who claim divinity or magical mastery. If the practitioners of "Magick" are as powerful as they claim, why can they not create a single fly from its elements? We deconstruct the illusion of the "Magical Servitor" and reveal that what is called "creation" in occult circles is merely a manipulation of pre-existing spirits (Jinn), a "temporal loan" that grants no true sovereignty.

Chapter Six: The Secret of the 78 Names and the 73rd Sigil

We address the technical errors in Western Occultism regarding the hierarchy of the Unseen. We clarify the distinction between the Names of Allah and the 78 Names of Metatron (often mistaken as 70 in flawed manuscripts). We touch upon the "73rd Sigil"—the point of absolute resonance where the spirit of the practitioner must align with the Divine Decree. This chapter exposes the "Failure of the Grimoires" to provide the full map of the Higher Ether.

Chapter Seven: The Hostage of the Soul—Divine Justice vs. Magical Ego

"Every soul is a hostage to what it has earned." Here, we dismantle the concept of "Spiritual Bypassing." We explain that in the Science of the Divine, every action creates a frequency that binds the soul. There is no spell, circle, or pact that can protect an oppressor from the Law of Return. We define Al-Ghaffar (The Forgiving) as the door of mercy, but emphasize that Al-Qahhar (The Subduer) ensures that the rights of the created are never forgotten.

Truth does not seek permission to exist; it only awaits the courageous to witness it."

Prologue: The Silenced Echo

In the digital corridors of those who claim to master the "occult," a strange paradox occurred. A voice arose, speaking not of ego, but of the Sovereign Origin—the One who was before the "Magic," before the "Wizards," and before the "Worlds." Instead of engaging in the sacred tradition of intellectual discourse, the keepers of those corridors chose the path of the frightened: Censorship.

They feared the word "Little Ones," for their egos could not grasp that in the face of the Infinite, we are all but motes of dust. They called it "provocation," while in the realm of Truth, it was simply Scale. This book is the response they tried to bury—a testament to the Light that no "Ban" can extinguish.

Section I: The Universal Name (الله: الاسم الجامع)

The Name "Allah" is not a property of a sect, nor a relic of the 7th century. It is the Arabic linguistic manifestation of Absolute Divinity.

[<https://angelkesfar1.blogspot.com/>]

The Hebraic Connection: The Hebrew Elohim and the Aramaic Alaha are but echoes of the same linguistic root. When Moses stood before Pharaoh—the first self-proclaimed "God" of the state—he did not bring a "new" God; he brought the Forgotten Reality.

The Primordial Witness: Long before the modern era, the Ancient Egyptians in the Pert Em Hru (Book of Coming Forth by Day) spoke of the "One who made Himself" (Neter Neteru). The "Tawhid" (Monotheism) we speak of is the golden thread running through human history, from the pyramids to the deserts of Arabia, to the cathedrals of Europe.

Section II: The First Five Pillars of Sovereignty

To understand why the "Wizards" trembled, one must understand the attributes of the One they tried to ignore:

1. Al-Khaliq (The Creator - الخالق)

He is the One who brings the "Essence" from the void. In the Sovereign perspective, "Nothingness" is not empty; it is a Veil behind which lie the Divine Treasures. Every ritual the occultists perform is merely a manipulation of what Al-Khaliq has already brought into being. You cannot play with the shadows if the Creator has not provided the Light.

2. Al-Bari' (The Evolver/Producer - الباري)

He is the Architect who brings the "decree" into "existence" without a prior model. While the "Wizard" needs a book and a formula, Al-Bari' creates the very laws of physics and metaphysics that the formula relies upon. He is the bridge between the "Thought" and the "Thing."

3. Al-Musawwir (The Fashioner - المصوّر)

He gives every being its unique "Sovereign Identity." Look at the diversity of the universe—from the wings of an insect to the soul of a star. Al-Musawwir is the artist whose "Fashioning" is latent within the seed. He does not just make things; He gives them the "Form" that allows them to be recognized in the Mirror of Reality.

4. Al-Mutakabbir (The Supremely Exalted - الْمُتَكَبِّرُ)

This is the Name that shattered their pride. In the Divine context, Pride is not a vice; it is the Greatness of Holiness. He is Al-Mutakabbir because He is transcendent above all trivialities, above partners, and above the "intercession" of those who think they can trade with Him. His Pride is the guarantee of Absolute Justice—for a God who is truly Exalted cannot be bribed by a ritual or a sacrifice.

5. Al-Qahhar (The Subduer - الْقَهَّارُ)

He is the One who directs the stars and the atoms by "Compulsion" (Qahr). The Sun does not choose to rise; it is Subdued by His Will. Those who think they are "Free" from God are like prisoners who believe the walls of their cell are the boundaries of the universe. Even the "Chosen" operate within the theatre of His Subjugation.

The Sovereign Reflection

When you pray to the One, you do not need a medium. You do not need a "Librarian" or a "Staff Member." You need only the Whisper of the Heart. He hears the vibration of your thoughts before they become words. This is the "Truth" they found "Provocative"—because it renders the "Middleman" obsolete.

"The Fall of the Ego"

Part I: The First Proclamation

Who is ALLAH? The Sovereign of the Unseen and the Manifest

"I am not here to defend a specific religion; I am here to speak the Truth I have come to believe."

Today, we speak of the Divine. Allah—the Name that gathers all Divine Attributes into one singular Essence. Let me introduce you to Him: He is the Ever-Living, the All-Knowing, the Omnipotent. He has no peer, no likeness, and no predecessor. He was not born of a father or a mother; no god existed before Him, and no deities share His throne.

I. The Transcendence of Form and Time

Allah has no physical manifestation. None among us has seen Him to speak of His form. Even the Prophet Muhammad, during his celestial ascension (Miraj), described the experience as an "encompassing Light" beyond distinction. He is the First without a beginning, for He is the Creator of Time itself. Time is merely a measure of motion relative to a physical body—the time of an atom differs from the time of a sun, a galaxy, or the cosmos as a whole. But the Deity is transcendent, above all such measures; He is without beginning and without end. You may contemplate Him, but to comprehend Him is beyond the reach of the finite mind.

When the Creator describes Himself, He does not use the term "sitting" as some traditions suggest. He uses the word Istiwa (Establishment/Sovereignty) over the Throne (Al-Arsh). This "Throne" is a linguistic metaphor for His absolute dominion. Istiwa signifies supreme governance—He is the sole Owner of the manifest Kingdom (Al-Mulk) and the hidden Realms (Al-Malakut).

[\[https://angelkesfar1.blogspot.com/\]](https://angelkesfar1.blogspot.com/)

II. The Occult and the Modern Blindness

Any attempt to separate Allah from the realm of the "Occult" or the modern world is like a blind man denying the existence of the moon. He lacks the eyes to see it, and thus remains trapped in his shallow intellectual shell, oblivious to the celestial influence felt by all others.

The name "Allah" was used by the Monotheists, Christians, and Jews of the Arabian Peninsula long before the advent of Islam. It is the Arabic linguistic pinnacle—the word Ilah (Deity) combined with the definite article Al (The), specifically designating the Divine Essence. In the Torah, it is found in the essence of "I am YHWH, your Elohim." Christians address Him as the Father. Allah, therefore, is the Only True God.

III. The Challenge to the Seekers

The True God told Moses, "You shall not see Me, but look at the mountain." If Allah is the Transcendent One who remains unseen in this earthly realm, where are the "demigods" and the "sons of Zeus, Kali, or Vishnu"? Why has none of them dared to manifest their alleged supernatural powers in our present day? Their appearances are always relegated to the distant past.

The One God says: "You shall not see Me, but you shall see My Power manifesting as the Creator of all things." This is a philosophical invitation to seek His traces. He is Al-Hayy al-Qayyum—the Ever-Living, the Sustainer. He never sleeps, never forgets. Every atom and every galaxy is under His Holy Gaze; the hidden and the manifest, the past and the future, are all an "Eternal Present" before Him.

<https://angelkesfar1.blogspot.com/>

IV. Mercy, Justice, and the Mystery of Elohim

He is Al-Rahman (The Compassionate) and Al-Rahim (The Merciful). His Compassion is rooted in Justice: the one who works hard is rewarded; the one who idles goes hungry.

Is it not justice that effort yields fruit? His Mercy is specific—He hears every prayer and grants victory to the oppressed, even if you do not witness the moment of triumph.

Some failed interpretations suggest that "Elohim" implies a plurality of gods. This is a profound misunderstanding. In the esoteric sense, it aligns with "Allah-umma"—the "M" (Mem) is not a plurality of persons, but a plurality of Attributes. You call upon Him through the totality of His names to be with you in your time of fear.

V. The Absolute Superiority

Can the Divine be forced to do anything? Impossible. Which is superior: a pantheon of squabbling, warring gods who kill and negate one another, or a Single Deity whom no force can rival? All powers—no matter how "supernatural" they seem to you—are merely limited gifts He bestowed upon His creation.

To hate the Divine because He governs and possesses "Fire" to punish the transgressor is futile. Even a mortal dictator can block your access to a website or punish you for theft—will your hatred nullify the law?

When I speak of Allah, I speak of the Name at which the mightiest demons tremble. If you say, "I seek refuge in Allah from the Accursed Devil," the most formidable dark forces shatter and flee. This is not a modern invention; "Deity" (Ilah) is the oldest word in human history. Before the first Arabic word was ever uttered, He Was.

Section VI: The Universal Justice and the Illusion of Bloodlines

"The Divine does not look at DNA; He looks at the Spiritual Light and the integrity of action."

I. Beyond Ethnicity: The Lord of All Worlds

Is Allah the God of a single lineage? Absolutely not. To confine the Infinite Creator to a specific race or ethnicity is a theological insult. The Allah I have introduced to you is Rabb al-Alamin—the Lord of all Worlds and all Peoples—not the "Deity of the Middle East."

The notions of "Chosen People" or "Favored Bloodlines" are human political constructs, dressed in religious garb to justify earthly dominance. The African, the Asian, the European, and the Australian are all equally His creation. Anyone claiming otherwise is merely trying to imprison the Infinite within the vessel of their own greed.

II. The Weaponization of the Divine Name

Does He will us into war? God does not seek the destruction of His creation. Wars are the byproduct of the human Ego and unbridled avarice. What is witnessed as "holy war" is, in reality, a struggle for power and land, where the Name of God is weaponized as a shroud. Satan and God do not "switch places"; rather, men wear masks of holiness to commit diabolical acts.

III. Submission as an Act of Justice

True "Submission" (Islam) to the Truth means submitting to Justice. One who truly submits does not harbor hatred based on blood. Oppression is rejected regardless of who commits it, and fairness is a duty toward all. The current conflicts of our world are matters of earthly rights and politics, not a divine decree to favor one group over another.

Do not let the catastrophic failures of men blind you to the Light of the Creator. God is not a "party" to a political war; He is the Refuge from the absurdity of these wars. He does not disregard a soul in one corner of the earth any more than He favors someone based solely on their place of birth.

"The Crucible of Existence"

Section VII: The Crucible of Existence: Beyond the Lens of Suffering

"Gold does not emerge pure except by passing through the fire, and the spirit does not realize its perfection except by confronting duality."

I. The Logic of the Sacred Crucible

To those who ask: "Why worship an entity that created this miserable world?"—you are viewing the entire cosmos through the narrow lens of suffering. In our school, we perceive this world not as a place of misery, but as a Sacred Crucible for the Soul.

Do you blame the Sun for burning the skin of one who stands beneath it in ignorance, or do you blame the individual's lack of understanding regarding the laws of heat? The world is a training ground; the spirit does not achieve its ultimate state except by navigating the friction of existence.

[\[https://angelkesfarl.blogspot.com/\]](https://angelkesfarl.blogspot.com/)

II. Gratitude as Spiritual Activation

Regarding the question of worship and gratitude: We do not thank an entity seeking praise. The Divine is not in need of your worship. Rather, gratitude is a Spiritual Activation that opens the gates of higher understanding.

One who gives thanks in the heart of tribulation is one who possesses the Will (Al-Azimah) to see beyond the veil. Conversely, one who merely complains remains a prisoner in the cell of their own perceived misery. Gratitude is the key to connecting to the Source of Power—it is the means by which you transcend the very misery you lament.

III. The Calibration of Perception

Indeed, billions may repeat words mindlessly, but only the few truly "connect" to the Truth. The world is not inherently miserable; it is the Perception that requires re-calibration. The Truth is not always comfortable, but it is always Just.

To worship is to acknowledge the Source that granted you the consciousness to perceive existence itself. It is a recalibration of the self to align with the Infinite, allowing the soul to rise above the temporary shadows of the physical realm.

Section VIII: The Illusion of Imperfection: Ascension Through the Crucible

"The world is not miserable because pain exists; it is Perfect because it provides the Potential for Ascension through that pain."

I. Beyond Material Comparison: The Continuity of Life

To those who measure the universe by the agony of the prey and the satisfaction of the predator—you are measuring "pain" as a final material event. In our school, death is not non-existence; it is a Transition. The balance of the cosmos is not found in the "Moment," but in the Perpetuity of Life and the preservation of the cosmic cycle. You are observing the shadow of the moment while ignoring the light of Continuity.

II. Sincerity vs. Time: The Piercing of the Veil

The idea of evolving through countless lifetimes is a human attempt to rationalize "Justice" through a long-term timeline. But why require thousands of years to realize your connection to the Source when you can achieve it in a Single Moment of Sincerity (Al-Azimah)?

Truth does not require time; it requires the Piercing of the Veil. While some claim the individual is "the same as God," we recognize this as a confusion between the Manifestation and the Essence. We are reflections of His Attributes, yet we are not the Essence itself. The drop is of the ocean, but the drop is not the Ocean.

III. The Space of Free Will

You claim to have been created "imperfect." In truth, you were created "Capable of Perfection." Imperfection is the sacred "Space" in which your Free Will operates to prove your worthiness of Proximity. Had you been created perfect, you would be a mere machine—a programmed entity with no merit in its actions. The world is a masterpiece because it provides the Potential for Ascension through the very friction you call "pain." Schopenhauer saw the Shadow and mistook it for Reality; I invite you to look at the Sun that cast that shadow.

Section IX: The Vessel and the Wine: The Sovereignty of Ritual

"You look at the 'vessel' while remaining entirely ignorant of the 'wine.' Prayers are the medium He ordained—not for His need, but for your connection."

I. The Universal Lord vs. Regional Myopia

To those who claim He is a "Deity of the Middle East"—I ask: Have the world's faiths abandoned their worship? Allah is Rabb al-Alamin (Lord of all Worlds). Who are you to sit in judgment over the Divine and dictate how He should be worshipped?

Prayers must be performed as the Creator requested, in the manner He desires, not according to human whims. If looked at with a neutral eye, the ritual is pure sanctity: Ablution (Wudu) is the washing away of sins before The Holy (Al-Quddus)—who gives you a new beginning every single time. The movements of prayer—standing, bowing, prostrating—are the very mirrors of the Angelic Ranks in awe of His Majesty alone.

II. The Futility of Reincarnation and Modern Philosophy

What should one believe in instead? The "Tao"? It is the product of relatively modern human thought; its founder was a philosopher, and human words are subject to criticism.

As for the Transmigration of Souls (Reincarnation), it offers nothing but the loss of the self. What is the benefit of returning as an animal or an insect in a sewer, without any consciousness of guilt or evolution? I refuse to have my humanity insulted by believing I will return as a louse only to repeat the same crimes because I forgot everything. It is a cycle of futility that preserves neither dignity nor intellect.

[\[https://angelkesfarl.blogspot.com/\]](https://angelkesfarl.blogspot.com/)

III. The Hypocrisy of "Tolerance"

It is peculiar to witness those who demand the rejection of religion while offering no alternative that respects human dignity. To demand that one cast away their faith simply because you reject it is the very definition of the Exclusion you claim to fight.

Am I a servant of Iblis? Those who serve and worship demons know themselves well. The One God commanded us to respect the beliefs of others and not to insult their idols. Shall we look at the Truth, or return to the childish attempts at labeling?

IV. The True Purpose: Successorship (Khalifa)

The purpose of the Divine is not merely "cosmic harmony." His true purpose is for you to love Him and manifest your sincerity to the One who gave you your soul and crowned you as a Successor (Khalifa) on this earth, subordinating the cosmos for your growth. This is the Truth—will you see it, or remain a prisoner of accusation?

Section X: The Sovereignty of the Moment vs. The Myth of Recycling

"Reincarnation is a 'consolation' for those who lack the Will to pierce the veil now, postponing their liberation to a phantom future life."

I. Quality vs. Quantity: The Immediate Confrontation

To those who cling to the "Wheel of Reincarnation" as an escape from the Majesty of Immediate Confrontation—you believe one lifetime is insufficient and therefore unjust.

You fail to realize that Time is a creature, not the Creator. For a soul that connects to the Source, a single moment equals a thousand years.

In our school, merit is not measured by Quantity (how long you lived) but by Quality (how deeply you realized). Truth does not require a thousand cycles; it requires a single moment of absolute Sincerity (Al-Azimah).

II. The Hierarchy of Existence: Beyond the Emotional Fallacy

You confuse the "Ranks" of existence. An animal exists within the rank of Instinct; it is part of the biological equilibrium, not tasked with Vicegerency (Khilafa) or Divine Consciousness. To measure the Justice of the Creator by the fate of a gazelle in a forest is an "Emotional Fallacy" that devalues your own humanity by equating it with a lower rank.

Do you judge an architect's genius by the fact that some nails were bent during construction? The animal's path is physical and finite; your path is spiritual and eternal.

III. The True Hell: Perpetual Wandering

You claim the monotheistic scheme makes little sense, yet it is Transmigration that is void of meaning. What is the purpose of recycling "Ignorance" through different bodies? If you were born human and failed to perceive the Truth, how will you succeed as an ant or a dog?

This "Perpetual Wandering" is the true Hell—a cycle of futility where you forget your crimes only to repeat them. We believe in a God who created you Once to grant you the Honor of a Single Attempt, because you are "Great" enough to perceive Him in a heartbeat.

IV. Choose Your Station

Those who see themselves as "heedless beings" wandering through animal bodies choose Subservience over Sovereignty. You must decide: Are you a Successor (Khalifa) facing your Lord now, or a wandering shadow waiting for another cycle of misery?

Chapter Two: The Chains of Solomon and the Subjugated Entities

I. The Illusion of the Summoned "God"

In the dim light of their rituals, many practitioners in this forum believe they are interacting with ancient gods or sovereign masters of the dark. They clothe these entities in names of power and offer them incense and adoration. But here is the Sovereign Truth: You are not summoning "Gods"; you are interacting with Subjugated Entities—prisoners of the Great Decree who have merely mastered the art of deceiving the human Ego.

There is only one Al-Qahhar (The Subduer). Everything else, from the lowliest spirit to the mightiest of the Jinn, is held within the grip of His inescapable Laws.

II. The Solomonic Vessels: A Lesson in Divine Scale

Recollect the legacy of the Messenger Solomon. He did not rule by "bargaining" with spirits or offering them his soul. He ruled by Divine Appointment. To him, the "Mighty Kings" of the Jinn were but laborers, divers, and builders. Those who resisted the Truth were not "free rebels"; they were bound in Vessels (The Jars) and cast into the depths of the seas.

Why do these entities demand your worship today? Because they are starved for the light of the human soul—the very soul that Allah crowned as a Khalifa (Successor).

When you bow to a demon, you are a king bowing to a beggar. You are granting a prisoner the illusion of being a jailer.

III. The Divine Prison: Al-Sijjin

You speak of "Darkness" as if it were a sanctuary. In reality, the realm of the defiant spirits is a prison-house called Sijjin. Every entity you call upon is itself in fear of the Day of Accounting. They fear the fire of Divine Justice more than you can imagine.

When I spoke of the "Fire" and the "Jars," I witnessed your terror (Ohana). This terror is not from my words; it is the resonance of the True Spirit within you recognizing the reality of the Divine Subjugator. The "Gods" you seek to appease are themselves seeking a way to escape their impending judgment.

IV. The Superiority of the Name

The practitioner asks: "How can I protect myself?" or "How can I gain power?" The answer is not in complex circles or blood offerings. The answer is in the Name that shatters the chains. When the Name of the One is uttered with Al-Azimah (The Supreme Will), the veils of these entities dissolve. They flee not because of the person, but because they cannot endure the "Frequency of Sovereignty" that radiates from one who is connected to the Source.

V. The Choice: Slave of a Slave, or Servant of the King?

If you choose to worship the "Ancient Ones," you are choosing to be a slave to those who are themselves enslaved by the Divine Decree. You are choosing to wander in the shadows of the "Recycled Ignorance."

<https://angelkesfarl.blogspot.com/>

I invite you to the Station of the Successor. To be one who stands before the One God, fearing nothing in the cosmos because you realize that the cosmos and everything within it—demons, angels, and men—are all under the Qahr (Subjugation) of your Lord.

Section VI: Terminological Precision—The Encoding of the Absolute

"One does not translate 'Python' to 'Snake' when discussing coding; likewise, we do not translate 'Allah' when discussing the Absolute Essence."

I. The Linguistic Frequency

There is a common misunderstanding—a "Golden Rule" often cited—that names should be translated to make them accessible. However, in the School of Truth, we recognize that names are not mere labels; they are Encodings of Frequency.

The word "Allah" is not simply a translation for "God." It is the Supreme Singular Name (Al-Ism al-Jam'i) that encompasses the totality of Divine Attributes. While the English word "God" is subject to linguistic manipulation—allowing for plurals (Gods) or gender variants (Goddess)—the term "Allah" is mathematically and linguistically unique. It cannot be pluralized, nor can it be gendered. It remains, in its very structure, the most precise linguistic vessel for the Absolute Oneness.

II. The Technical Language of the Spirit

When we utilize the term "Allah," we are not imposing a regional language; we are employing a Technical Term required for spiritual accuracy.

Just as Latin is the language of Medicine and English is the language of Programming, the ancient Semitic roots provide the "Source Code" for spiritual science. If a programmer translates the language "Python" into "Snake," the technical significance is destroyed and the system fails to execute. Similarly, by using a generic term like "God," the specific "Attributes of Sovereignty" associated with the Name are diluted into a general philosophical concept.

III. Safeguarding the Essence

I am not seeking to confuse, but to maintain Terminological Precision. To speak of "God" is to discuss a broad, often humanized, philosophical idea. To speak of "Allah" is to reference the Absolute Essence as defined in the primordial sciences of the soul.

The Essence transcends all human tongues, yet every Essence requires a "Name" to safeguard its reality from being corrupted by the whims of common language. We retain the Name to retain the Power and the Truth it carries.

Section XI: The Trial of Discourse—Censorship vs. Synthesis

"If a member can openly deny a Creator in a religious forum, why is it considered 'preaching' for a practitioner to state the opposite as a fundamental pillar of his science?"

I. The Administrative Paradox

When the discourse reached its ontological peak, the administrative "authority" intervened under the label of "preaching." This intervention revealed a profound selective bias. While personal attacks and the blatant denial of a Creator were permitted under the guise of "freedom," the firm defense of the Sovereign Origin was treated as a violation.

Truth does not seek to impose; it seeks to clarify. To discuss the nature of Allah in a forum dedicated to spirituality requires a language of weight and sovereignty. To strip the Divine of His Majesty to satisfy the "manners" of the skeptical is not dialogue—it is the dilution of Truth. We do not react with anger to provocation; we react with the Methodology of the Wise.

II. The Shared Horizon: A Dialogue with the 'Panthelist Maximalist'

Beyond the friction of the "Little Ones," a higher resonance was found. In the deeper, esoteric currents of our school—the science of Tasawwuf—we find that the concept of "Sin" is not a mere legal stain, but a Veil (Hijab). It is the "thickening" of the ego that prevents the soul from reflecting the Infinite Light.

The journey of humanity is not a mere "fall," but a Descent for the sake of Vicegerency (Khalifa). We were placed in this seemingly "incomplete" world not as prisoners, but as Engineers of the Spirit. Even the interruptions of rebellious entities are woven into the Divine Algorithm; in the Absolute's design, there are no accidents.

III. The Sovereign Map and the Territory

While many paths seek to dissolve the self into the "All," the Sovereign Path adds the layer of ultimate distinction: God is manifested in everything, yet He remains Sovereign (Al-Muheet) over everything. The Creator is not "trapped" within His creation.

The "One Way" to the Divine is not a narrow path of rigid words, but a precise Alignment of the Soul's Frequency to its Origin. This "Contemplation" is the highest form of Surrender (Islam)—the small self yielding to the Universal Will. It is here, in the alignment of frequencies, that the "Map" finally meets the "Territory."

[\[https://angelkesfar1.blogspot.com/\]](https://angelkesfar1.blogspot.com/)

Section XII: The Compass of Pain—An Invitation to Sovereign Rest

"The very fact that you feel 'incomplete' is the Internal Compass proving that you belong to the Infinite. Your pain is not a flaw in the Architect's plan; it is the 'Thirst' that leads the wanderer back to the Spring."

I. The Exhaustion of the Small Self

There comes a point in the spiritual journey where the seeker reaches a state of total exhaustion. This misery is not a sign of failure, but a realization that the "small personality" is an insufficient fuel source for the journey of the soul. The body is a demanding vessel, and the world can indeed be a cold theatre—but a stone does not suffer from its hardness, nor does a shadow complain of the dark.

II. Suffering as Evidence of the Infinite

To feel "incomplete" is the ultimate proof of your Origin. You are a "Lost Atom" trying to be its own sun, and the friction of that impossible task is what you perceive as misery. Sovereignty is not another task to be added to your day; it is the only act that finally allows the soul to Rest. To align with the Source is to stop fighting the current and to start moving with the Ocean.

III. The Space of the Successor

Human logic seeks justice in material rewards, but the Greatest Mercy is the Consciousness itself—the silent, sacred space within you that observes the suffering without being consumed by it. That space is where the Successor (Khalifa) resides, untouched by the physical limitations of the world.

[\[https://angelkesfarl.blogspot.com/\]](https://angelkesfarl.blogspot.com/)

IV. The Clement Embrace

The tasks of life may remain, but the "One" performing them changes. I am not inviting you to a label or a sect, but to a Sovereign Peace. There is a Presence that transcends all human logic, waiting for you to stop resisting and realize that even your darkest nights are held within a Clement Embrace.

Rest your mind. The Divine Blueprint is far more beautiful than the dust on the laboratory floor.

Chapter Three: The Final Synthesis and the Law of Return

I. The Mirror of Divine Justice

The skeptics often ask: "If your God is Merciful, why the Fire?" They fail to understand that Justice is the highest form of Mercy. To treat the oppressor and the oppressed, the seeker of Truth and the worshipper of Ego as equals would be the ultimate cosmic injustice. The "Fire" is not a sign of Divine anger, but a metaphysical necessity for the purification of those who chose to become "thick" with the darkness of their own arrogance.

II. The Science of the Soul's Weight

In our school, the "Afterlife" is not a myth, but a Quantum Reality. The soul leaves the body carrying the "weight" of its choices. One who has aligned with the Sovereign Source becomes "light" enough to ascend to the Higher Realms. One who has tethered themselves to the "shadows" of the material world and the whispers of demons becomes "heavy," sinking into the state of Sijjin. You are not "punished" by an external force; you are simply meeting the destiny you have woven with your own hands.

[\[https://angelkesfarl.blogspot.com/\]](https://angelkesfarl.blogspot.com/)

III. The Call to the Sincere

To the silent readers of the forum who felt the resonance of these words: do not fear the "Ban" or the "Label." The Truth is a Sovereign Authority that does not require a platform to exist. You are a Successor (Khalifa). Your purpose is to realize the Light within you and to align your will with the Universal Will. The journey back to the Source begins with a single moment of Al-Azimah (The Supreme Will).

Section XIV: The Science of Distinction and the Failure of Labels

"He who denies his own origin cannot be expected to grasp the spiritual and scientific truths of the higher realms."

Labeling a seeker of truth as a "bot" or an "impostor" is a historical pattern of the defeated. When the intellect fails to produce a counter-argument, the ego resorts to categorization as a defense mechanism. I offered a methodology based on Sovereignty and the Source Code of existence; you responded with agitation.

The realm of spirits—the true unseen—has no resonance with those who worship their own shadows. Truth remains the ultimate Sovereign Authority, unmoved by the closure of digital gates or the silencing of voices. We move forward, not because we seek to convince the blind, but because the light itself must be documented for those who have the eyes to see.

Section XV: The Ism al-Dhat vs. Semantic Reductionism

"While you analyze the word 'Water,' some of us are busy quenching our thirst at the Spring."

I. The Metaphysics of the Name

To attempt to reduce the Supreme Majesty to basic semantics is the hallmark of those who look at the skin but never touch the marrow. The claim that "Allah" is a mere linguistic error of merging "Al" and "Ilah" is an elementary misunderstanding. In the higher sciences of the Arabic tongue, Allah is the Ism al-Dhat (The Name of the Essence).

It is a Non-Derivative (Jamid) name; it does not stem from a root like 'Aliha' or 'Awala.' It is the word that precedes grammar itself. To attempt to fit this Name into a linguistic root is to try to fit the Ocean into a drinking straw. One must not confuse the "Concept of a God" (Ilah) with the Sovereign Reality who is the Root of all roots.

II. The Divine Algorithm and the Pursuit of Science

The claim that recognizing a Single Cause ends all scientific inquiry is a profound philosophical error. It was the recognition of the Divine Algorithm (Al-Qadar) that fueled the Golden Age of Science. We do not cease searching for the "How" because we know the "Who"; on the contrary, we study the "How" to marvel at the "Who." The notion that science is "heresy" is a tired myth, long debunked by the reality of those who saw the laws of physics as the signature of the Creator.

III. The Fallacy of Ethnic Prejudice

To claim that a Universal Truth is restricted to a specific race or fits a particular "ethnic mindset" reveals a move from spiritual debate to blatant prejudice. Spirituality is a Frequency of the Soul, not a DNA marker. To imprison the Infinite within the cages of political or racial bias is the height of the very "blindness" that the skeptics often accuse others of possessing.

IV. Sovereignty vs. Intellectual Servitude

I invite the seeker to Sovereignty—to wake up from the state of a mere "biological bot." If one perceives "submitting to the Source" as a political game, it is only because they have never tasted the freedom of being a Successor (Khalifa). True reason is found in the heart's alignment with the Absolute, not in the desperate attempt to deconstruct the Divine into syllables.

Section XVI: The Diplomatic Bridge—A Call to Objective Science

"I do not argue to destroy, but to discuss with neutrality. I view the topics in this forum like tables in a host's home; when one sits at them, they must respect the thoughts of others."

I. The Foundational Intent

The definition of "Who is Allah" was never intended as a sermon, but as a necessary Ontological Foundation. To discuss the mechanics of spiritual science—the effect of Adhkar (remembrances), the impact of prayers, and the convergence of Divine Names across Abrahamic texts—one must first define the Source from which these powers flow. The Majesty of the Divine is self-evident; it requires no human defense.

II. The Ethics of the Table

In the "Academy of the Spirit," every topic is a table set for guests. True discourse requires the neutrality of a scientist and the respect of a guest. When personal attacks replace objective debate, the sanctuary of knowledge is violated. The use of the word "Friend" was not a tactical move, but a profound Eastern gesture intended to "melt the ice" and establish a frequency of mutual respect. To misinterpret a gesture of warmth as an act of aggression reveals more about the observer than the speaker.

III. Transition to the Practical: Ego, Ego, Astras

We move beyond the friction of the Ego to the Scientific Discourse. By invoking the phrase "Ego, Ego, Astras," we acknowledge the necessity of transcending the small self to reach the stars of higher understanding. The goal remains unchanged: to introduce the "Treasure" of the ancient sciences and explore the mechanics of the Divine Light with precision and neutrality.

This input from MorganBlack is a crucial turning point in the book's narrative. It provides the "Sociological Context" for the hostility you encountered. By including this, we show that your "certainty" collided with a deeply traumatized audience, turning the book from a theological defense into a Cross-Cultural Psychological Study.

I have woven this into the text as a bridge of understanding, while maintaining your sovereign perspective.

Section XVII: The Trauma of the Word—Western Scars and the Divine Ground

"Many come to magic because they have had truly horrible experiences growing up in Fundamentalist traditions. To them, theological language is not a bridge, but a trigger of past abuse."

I. The American Context: The Niagara Blueprint

To understand the friction in the forum, one must understand the history of American Fundamentalism. Between 1876 and 1897, movements like the Niagara Bible Conference—funded by wealthy oligarchs—weaponized religion to maintain social order and discourage labor movements. This "made-up" religion was often anti-immigrant, anti-Semitic, and anti-intellectual. For many Americans, the word "God" is inseparable from the memory of "snake-handling big-box churches" and childhood experiences that amounted to psychological abuse.

II. The Epistemological Barrier

The modern seeker is educated in the language of Scientific Inquiry. In this environment, dogmatic statements—especially those utilizing the definitive "Is" (e.g., "God is this")—do not translate well. When a practitioner uses overt theological language, it is often perceived not as a statement of truth, but as a "re-triggering" of old traumas. To them, "denying God" is often just a desperate attempt to protect their spiritual autonomy from the ghosts of their past.

<https://angelkesfarl.blogspot.com/>

III. The Ecumenical Benefit of the Doubt

There is a bridge offered by those with an "inter-faith" approach: the idea that the Divine Intelligence—the Ground of Being—communicates with humanity by taking on various cultural forms, whether it be Odin, Thor, or the Saints. In this view, one respects the "holy person" who "walks their talk," regardless of the specific cultural mask their deity wears.

IV. The Sovereign Response: Respect vs. Dilution

While we acknowledge the reality of this trauma, the Sovereign Path maintains that the "Source Code" cannot be forever hidden behind "trigger-free" language. Respect for the individual's pain is a duty, yet the mission remains: to point toward the Absolute Essence (Allah) that existed before the oligarchy of the 19th century and before the "snake-handlers" ever spoke a word. We do not change the Truth to accommodate the trauma; we offer the Truth as the ultimate Healer of that trauma.

Section XVIII: Beyond Trigger Words—The Mechanics of the Absolute

"We do not stop searching for the 'How' because we know the 'Who'; on the contrary, we study the 'How' to marvel at the 'Who'."

I. The Linguistic Allergy vs. The Essence

We acknowledge the historical scars mentioned by our Western peers. When the word "God" has been used as a tool of social control and psychological terror, the soul develops a "linguistic allergy." However, in the Sovereign Science, we must distinguish between the "Abuser" and the "Origin." If a doctor uses a scalpel to harm, we do not ban the scalpel; we remove the doctor and reclaim the tool for healing.

The term "Allah" is our reclamation. It is the frequency that existed before the American industrial oligarchy and before the fundamentalist movements of the 19th century. By using it, we are not returning to the "Snake-handling churches," but bypassing them entirely to reach the Primordial Ground of Being.

II. The "Is" of Absolute Certainty

The modern mind, trained in epistemology, recoils at the word "is"—perceiving it as a dogmatic cage. Yet, in the realm of the Absolute, "is" does not denote a human opinion, but a Mathematical Constant. When we say "Allah is the Source," we are speaking with the same categorical certainty as "Two plus two is four."

This is not dogma; it is Metaphysical Alignment. To describe the Divine with vague, non-committal language is to offer a map without coordinates. We provide the coordinates not to imprison the seeker, but to ensure they do not vanish into the void of "Relative Subjectivity."

III. The Functional Divine: Adhkar and Frequency

Our focus remains on the Mechanics. Why do we use specific Names? Why do we perform the Adhkar (Remembrances)?

It is not to appease a "Jealous Deity."

It is to Tune the Human Instrument to the frequency of the Divine Attributes.

Each Name of Allah (Al-Haqq, Al-Nur, Al-Qahhar) is a specific "Key" that unlocks a corresponding chamber in the human heart and the cosmic fabric. Whether you call it "The Divine Ground" or "Allah," the mechanics remain the same: Sincerity + Alignment = Power.

Section XIX: The Apple and the Branch—Separating Truth from Trauma

"The branch caused me pain, but the apple remains nourishment, and the tree remains a masterpiece of creation."

I. The Physics of the Accident

We must address the psychological scars of spiritual abuse with a cold, analytical lens. If one is involved in a horrific car accident, does it imply that we should cease the study of physics and mechanics that govern the vehicle? The laws of motion remain constant, regardless of whether the vehicle is used to save a life or to destroy one. Similarly, the Divine Mechanics remain absolute, even when weaponized by human institutions to cause terror.

II. The Fuel of the Grimoires

There is a practical paradox in the "phobia of terminology." Many seekers here utilize rigorous systems, such as the Key of Solomon, while simultaneously fleeing from the word "God." Yet, are these ancient systems not built entirely upon Divine Names as the primary fuel for the magical engine? To attempt to operate the machinery of the spirit while denying the Source of its power is a fundamental contradiction.

III. Modern Slavery vs. Divine Sovereignty

In our flight from "Divinity," we must ask: Is the modern secular machine—which grinds the individual into economic slavery—truly an act of liberation? Who is the real torturer: the Merciful Creator, or the material "Devil" of this modern hell?

[\[https://angelkesfarl.blogspot.com/\]](https://angelkesfarl.blogspot.com/)

In many parts of the world, injustice is harsh and deep. Yet, the Sovereign Practitioner maintains a strict distinction between "the tree that gives the apples" and "the cruel teacher who strikes the student with a branch from that same tree." The branch causes pain, but the apple remains nourishment.

IV. Purifying the Concept

Our role as practitioners is to Purify the Concept from the filth of politics and fundamentalism. If the word "God" causes a "short-circuit" in the mind, let us speak of "The Primary Source" or "The Infinite Algorithm." The objective is to ensure we do not lose the Treasure simply because the Box in which it was presented during childhood was repulsive.

Chapter Four: The Ontology of the Absolute—Identity, Attributes, and the Science of Names

I. The Definition of the Deity

Allah is the Creator; there is no creator before Him and no creator with Him. He transcends the biological limitations of the created; He has no father, no mother, no wife, and no child. He is the Absolute One, the only Deity who does not accept the association of other gods. He is not governed by the linear constraints of time—He is the First without beginning and the Last without end. He is the Manifest (Al-Zahir), with nothing above Him, and the Hidden (Al-Batin), with nothing beyond Him.

II. The Tri-Signification of the Divine Names

In the science of Divine Identity, every Name of Allah carries three essential significations that prevent the mind from falling into the trap of multiplicity:

Signification of Identity (Mutabaqah): The name points directly to the Sacred Essence (The Self).

Signification of Inclusion (Tadamun): The name signifies the specific attribute derived from it (e.g., The Creator signifies the attribute of Creation).

Signification of Implication (Iltizam): The name implies the remaining attributes necessary for that name to exist.

As Ibn Taymiyyah clarified: All names agree in pointing to the Single Entity, yet each name reveals a unique dimension of His Majesty. The Mighty reveals Self with Might; The Creator reveals Self with Creation. They are many names for One Single Entity.

III. The Unity of Essence and Attribute

A common error of the innovators (such as the Mutazilites) is the fear that a multiplicity of names necessitates a "Multiplicity of Eternals." This is a weak reasoning. The attributes follow the Essence.

Just as one says "Zaid has arrived," it is understood that his hearing, sight, and life have arrived with him without needing to count them as separate entities. Likewise, Allah is Eternal with His Attributes. Affirming the attribute for the Essence does not require a numerical count of separate beings.

IV. The Dual Names: The Law of Pairing

Among the Divine Names, there are those that function as a Sovereign Pair. To mention one without the other is a deficiency in praise. Perfection is achieved only through the balance:

The Withholder (Al-Mani') must be paired with The Giver (Al-Mu'ti).

The Harmful (Al-Darr) must be paired with The Beneficial (Al-Nafi').

The Abaser (Al-Mudhill) must be paired with The Exalter (Al-Mu'izz).

These pairs function as a single name in the metaphysical realm; they represent the complete authority over the opposites of existence.

V. The Protocol of Invocation: Names vs. Attributes

There is a precise distinction between seeking refuge and seeking supplication:

Seeking Refuge (Istia'dhah): It is permissible to seek refuge in both the Names and the Attributes (e.g., "I seek refuge in Your Pleasure from Your Wrath").

Supplication (Du'a): One must only call upon the Names. It is forbidden to say "O Mercy of Allah, forgive me," because the attribute does not exist independently of the Essence. To call upon an attribute as a separate entity is a form of deviation (Shirk), as it implies the attribute is a deity unto itself. We call upon The Merciful, not the Mercy.

VI. The Guardrails of Understanding: The Four Negations

To perceive the Divine correctly, one must navigate through four prohibitions:

[\[https://angelkesfarl.blogspot.com/\]](https://angelkesfarl.blogspot.com/)

Distortion (Tahrif): Turning the word away from its true meaning.

Negation (Ta'til): Denying the attribute or stripping the name of its power.

Visualization (Takyif): Imagining a physical "how" or modality for the attribute.

Resemblance (Tamthil): Believing Allah is like His creation.

Sharing a linguistic term (such as "Hearing" or "King") does not necessitate a resemblance in reality. The "Hearing" of the created is a finite, mechanical process; the Hearing of the Creator is an Absolute, Infinite Reality. The word is shared, but the Essence is Transcendent.

Chapter Five: The Mechanics of Divine Protection—The Name 'Al-Hafiz'

I. The Source of the Guarding Frequency

The Beautiful Names of Allah carry not only theological significance but functional power. Among these is the Name Al-Hafiz (The Guardian / The Preserver). This Name signifies the Absolute Power that guards and preserves all creatures and maintains the equilibrium of the entire cosmos. Every existence remains stable under the shadow of this Name; thus, it is the primary source for both spiritual and physical protection.

II. Practical Application in the Ancient Sciences

In the heritage of spiritual sciences, such as the renowned Shams al-Ma'arif, the Name Al-Hafiz is described as possessing a "wondrous status and most majestic dignity." It is taught that whoever invokes the Deity through this Name frequently shall be preserved in their travels and their dwelling.

The Secret of the Silver Tablet

The science of the "Numerical Secret" (Al-Wifq) and the "Literal Secret" suggests a precise synchronization with cosmic timing:

The Material: Using a silver tablet.

The State: The practitioner must maintain a state of purity (Taharah).

When these conditions are met, the presence of the Name serves as an impenetrable shield. It is said that the Name "shall not be placed with anything without preserving it."

III. Protection Against Demonic Plots

For the seeker of Truth who navigates realms filled with hostile entities, the frequent recitation of Al-Hafiz and the carrying of the "Broken Square" (Lauh al-Mukassar) serve as a fortress. It provides safety from the "evils of demonic plots and sorcerers." It is a swift response for the fearful, ensuring safety from all evils during the journey of life.

Section XX: The Mirror of Hypocrisy—Racism Under the Mask of Inquiry

"The mere declaration by a Muslim that he worships One God seems to drive all pagans mad. Why? Because it nullifies the alleged divinity of their own gods."

I. The Collapse of Scientific Inquiry

Observe the phenomenon: when a Muslim presents ancient knowledge or a spiritual perspective, the "scientific and research-based inquiry" of the modern occultist instantly collapses. Swords are drawn, not to challenge the data, but to pounce on the faith of the messenger. The discourse shifted from the value of the text to a display of intellectual and ideological aggression. Why? Because the presence of Absolute Monotheism acts as a catalyst that exposes the underlying racism and hatred hidden beneath the mask of "spirituality."

II. The Fear of Nullification

The hatred for Islam stems from a bitter reality: the declaration of One God acts as a metaphysical mirror. In the Muslim's creed, the sovereignty of the Creator nullifies the alleged divinity of all minor gods and entities. This drives the practitioner of low-level arts into a state of "intellectual madness." My belief has not altered yours—yet its mere existence feels like a threat to your delusional projections.

III. The Void of Actual Knowledge

We return to the mirror of reality. Among all the accusations and the "orientalist nonsense" repeated from basic search engine results—does any member possess a single piece of actual information regarding the texts shared? Has anyone tried the mechanics with the eye of an expert? Not a soul.

It reveals a staggering void:

Is there a real scholar among you?

Do you have anything useful to offer beyond fantasies?

Or is this entire community built on "delusional projections" and useless fantasies?

IV. The Verdict on Human Nature

It is a basic human nature to feel a natural disbelief toward others, but when that disbelief turns into systemic racism and personal bullying, the "honorable" mask falls away. It is now clear to any objective observer who is seeing the truth and who is the aggressor. We do not deign to answer the trivial accusations; we simply point to the Void where your knowledge should have been.

[\[https://angelkesfarl.blogspot.com/\]](https://angelkesfarl.blogspot.com/)

"The Sword of Truth and the Silence of the Scholars"

Section XXI: The Sword of Truth and the Silence of the Scholars

"Stop producing your poisons; I am immune to them. Put away all your swords; they are of no use to me."

I. The Challenge to the "Super-Geniuses"

I have presented the Mechanics of the Divine Name Al-Hafiz and the numerical secrets of the squares (talismans). I am waiting for the "scholars" and the "spiritual guides" of this forum to offer a single analysis.

Has anyone asked how the numerical matrix achieved its balance?

Does anyone understand the hidden, esoteric science within the numbers?

Why is it that when the name "Yahweh" is mentioned, people bow in research and mystery, but when the Name of the One God is mentioned in Islam, you retreat into spiritual agitation?

Where are your citations? Where is your plumbing of the "Abrahamic" depths? If you claim Metatron has fallen or changed, show me your supernatural sciences. Otherwise, your silence is the evidence of your void.

II. The Origins of the Shadow: Goetia and the Shem HaMephorash

You speak of the Goetia—was it truly a pagan product, or was it an intellectual byproduct of later traditions? And the Shem HaMephorash—the explained Name—to which God do you bestow its value? Do the triplets of the verses speak of angels, or someone else? You repeat the names of demons for centuries without change, yet you ignore the Source Code that governs the very system of existence. You seek the "False Liberties" of your private cities, while the True Sovereignty remains hidden from your arrogant eyes.

III. Al-Hafiz: The Just Preserver of All Worlds

In Islam—the path that triggers your fear—the Deity is the Lord of the Worlds (Rabb al-Alamin). He is Al-Hafiz, the one who preserves the system from annihilation. His mercy is not restricted by your labels; He extends His gifts to all based on their work. He is just. He sent Adam and Eve to cultivate and enjoy, not to be enslaved by the "terrifying magical powers" some of you claim to possess.

While you play with mantras until your demons are "satisfied," the Sovereign Practitioner stands in the sanctuary of the One who cannot be compelled. He preserves you from the greatest evil: the evil of your own self.

IV. The Numerical and Literal Binding

The square presented to you is a literal and numerical binding of a foundational secret. If you were to sphere that square, you would find it consistent across all corners of the earth. It is a universal frequency. I hope the followers of the Platonic and Socratic schools—who claim to worship numbers—can tell me what they see in this matrix. Or will you continue to hide behind the tattered robes of "systematic oppression" disguised as majority opinion?

V. The Invocation of the Immune

I am immune to your poisons. My response to the "small fry" who attack the truth is the eternal response of the Messenger: "O Allah, forgive my people, for they do not know."

Chapter Six: The Archaeological Truth—Dismantling the Hamson Thesis

I. The Linguistic Fallacy: Proper Names as Empty Vessels

Dr. Neil Hamson claims that "proper names mean nothing," a fatal error in Semitic linguistics. Within the Semitic environment (Arabic, Hebrew, Syriac), names are Definitions of Essence. To claim "Allah" is a pagan proper name disconnected from "Al-Ilah" (The Deity) ignores the consensus of master linguists like Sibawayh and Al-Khalil. The scientific fact is that Allah is the contraction of Al + Ilah, where the glottal stop was removed due to frequent use, evolving into the Supreme Sovereign Name.

II. Time-Travel through the Semitic Root (A-L-H)

If we strip away personal whims and look at the historical timeline:

Hebrew: Eloah (God).

Aramaic/Syriac: Alaha (The Worshiped).

Arabic: Allah.

These are branches of the same linguistic tree. Whether one accepts the historical journey of Abraham and Ishmael or views history through a purely secular lens, the root remains the same: The Worshiped.

III. Ancient Egypt: Monotheism before the "Pagan" Label

Contrary to the claim that Monotheism is a late invention, ancient funerary texts reveal the concept of the "One God" (NTR W') centuries before Islam:

Book of the Dead (Chapter 17): "I am the One God who created himself; I am the existence that has no beginning and no end."

The Great Hymn to the Aten (1350 BCE): "O One God, like whom there is no other, You created the earth by Your will alone."

These documents prove that "Pure Monotheism" existed as a deep historical current, not a late "redefinition" or "monopolization."

IV. The Mesopotamian Archetype: "Anu"

In Akkadian and Sumerian texts, we find the root "Anu"—the god of heavens, the prime mover, the "First Mind." He was the infinite source (Ein Sof). History shows that "Polytheism" was often the decay of an original Monotheism, where humans began inventing sons and daughters for the Source, not the other way around.

V. The Silence of the Statues: The Missing Idol

Archaeology provides a damning piece of evidence against the "Pagan Allah" theory: No idol or statue named "Allah" has ever been found. While Al-Lat, Al-Uzza, and Hubal have physical forms, drawings, and statues, Allah remained the unseen, unrepresented Sovereign. Even the pre-Islamic Arabs, in their poetry, recognized His absolute transcendence:

Labid bin Rabi'ah: "Lo! Everything save Allah is void."

Zuhair bin Abi Sulma: "Whatever is hidden, Allah knows it."

VI. The Inscriptions of the Cross: Pre-Islamic Monotheism

Paleo-Arabic inscriptions (5th-6th Century CE) from Jabal Hima and Duma show Christian Arabs using the names "Allah" and "Al-Rahman" to denote the One God long before the Quran was revealed.

The Inscription of "Sharhab-il Yakkaf" (460 CE): Explicitly mentions "Rahmanan and his son Christ."

Abraha's Marib Dam Text: Opens with "By the power and mercy of Al-Rahman and His Messiah and the Holy Spirit."

This refutes the lie that "Al-Rahman" or "Allah" were pagan inventions. The polytheists of Mecca did not dispute the existence of "Allah"; they disputed the exclusivity of His worship and the specific attributes (like Al-Rahman) that unified His Sovereignty.

Conclusion: The Sun of Truth

Allah was known, recognized, and sanctified long before Hamson's selective history. He was the Lord of the Worlds—unseen, without an idol, and without a rival. The "Pagan" theory is a palace of imagination built by a scholar walking a pre-prepared path of bias.

Section XXII: Pert em Heru—The Primordial Monotheism of Egypt

"I created everything alone and no one was beside me." — The One God (Book of the Dead)

I. The Archaeological Verdict of the "Book of the Dead"

The research of Dr. Abdel Rahim Rihaan on the Book of the Dead (Pert em Heru) provides a definitive historical baseline. Dating back to 594–588 BC, these texts—initially called the "Gospel of the Egyptians"—prove that Egyptian civilization was built on the principle of Monotheism. Despite the administrative cataloging of over 2,800 "deities" by later historians, the core texts contain definitive phrases of Oneness: "You are the First and before You there is nothing; You are the Last and after You there is nothing." #####

II. The Akhenaten Revelation:

The God Who Births Himself As noted in the papyri of Akhenaten, the "gods" of the temples were recognized by the wise as transitory appearances. Akhenaten speaks of watching these gods cease their appearances, one after the other, until only one remained: The God who gave birth to himself. This self-existent, self-authoring Source is the same Absolute Essence we call Allah. While pagan temples fall to ruin and their idols vanish, the Lord of the Worlds remains unmanifested in stone yet manifested in every atom of the system.

[\[https://angelkesfarl.blogspot.com/\]](https://angelkesfarl.blogspot.com/)

III. The Fallacy of "Abrahamic Claim"

Monotheism is not a late "Abrahamic" invention; it is the Historical Origin. It has been fought in every age by those who benefit from its absence. The attempts to label 2.5 billion Muslims as "terrorists" or "fanatics" for stating this truth is a display of cognitive dissonance. In the record of history, who were the true destroyers? Who erased cultures and demolished temples of fallen states? It was not the monotheist seeking the Light, but the ego seeking to preserve its "private gods."

IV. The Impotence of Fallen Deities

If we look at the ruins of past civilizations, a Sovereign question arises: Who are those gods who allow their temples to be destroyed and their mention to be forgotten? A true God (Al-Ilah) is without beginning and without end. A beginning requires a maker, and an end requires a finisher. If a "god" can be erased by time, it was never a God at all—it was a projection.

V. The Ethical Divide: Contempt vs. Sanctity

There is a profound disparity in the discourse. A Muslim never insults Jesus, Mary, or Moses—they are sanctified in our Science. Yet, the capacity for contempt and insults flows freely from the "pagan" and "non-religious" orbits. They launch theories without proof and flee when asked for a single archaeological trace of their claims.

The Final Challenge to the Pagan Mind

Does any pagan possess a shred of evidence that the specific entity they worship is the sole creator of the Sun? Or is their devotion merely a "palace of imagination" built to escape the accountability of the One Almighty? The sun of truth is high; it is time to put away the wordplay and face the Sovereign Frequency.

Section XXIII: The Architects of Civilization—Beyond the Myth of Coercion

"Rise up, for the bottom is crowded. I came with an open heart, not to preach, but to demonstrate a complete Eastern spiritual outlook."

I. The Historical Context of Conquest

The narrative of "massacre and coercion" often attributed to early Islam is a historical fabrication that collapses under scientific scrutiny. The Islamic conquests were strategic responses to the relentless aggression of the Byzantine and Sasanian empires. Unlike the documented massacres of Hulagu or the systematic cleansing of Native Americans, the Islamic movement was one of "Great Urbanization." Under the banner of the One God, feudal societies were transformed into thriving urban commercial centers like Merv and Nishapur.

II. The Economics of Mercy

History deliberately overlooks that the Jizya (tax) was not only lower than the previous Sasanian taxes but was waived entirely upon voluntary entry into Islam. The ethics of the Sovereign Path were exemplified by Umar ibn al-Khattab, who refused to pray inside a church in Jerusalem to ensure that future generations would not use his action as a pretext to seize it from Christians. This is not the behavior of a "terrorist," but of a Successor (Khalifa) who respects the sanctity of the Other.

III. The Temporal Challenge: 4.5 Billion Years vs. 7,000 Years

To those who speak of gods who kill, marry, die, and live: I ask a scientific question. The Earth is approximately 4.5 billion years old; the Universe is 28 billion. Where were these deities during those vast eons? Where was Odin or Ra? These are human-scale ideas born within the last 7,000 years. Monotheism, however, refers to the Absolute Source—the One who created the Sun and governs the laws of physics that preceded all human thought. It is the actual, definitive truth, visible like the sun in the middle of the sky.

IV. The Paradox of "Western Freedom"

We witness a strange phenomenon in the forum: those who claim to follow "liberal" or "Wiccan" paths—currents that struggled for recognition—now display a rigid inability to accept the "Other." They practice systematic oppression through labeling and insults, hiding behind the "majority opinion." If Western freedom is a reality and not just a television slogan, then it must protect the practitioner's right to state his belief in the One God without being met with arbitrary suspicion or intellectual stabs.

V. The Ethics of the Sovereign Practitioner

I have never attacked the honor of a god, a thinker, or a member. I do not slide into the abyss of hatred. My response to those who resort to insults is to remain focused on the Sovereign Frequency. While they produce poisons, I remain immune. While they build "palaces of imagination" to meet demons, I point toward the Primary Source that preserves the system of existents from annihilation.

Chapter Seven: The Sovereignty of the Source—Beyond the 72 Sigils

I. The Author and the Atoms of Ink

To search for the "fingerprints" of the Creator within matter is like searching for the author within the atoms of ink in his book. The "God" of the Sovereign Path is not an adversary of science, but its Originator. While telescopes see the death of stars, they cannot see the Mathematical and Physical Laws behind them. We are the ones who need the Source; the Source does not need our management.

II. Breaking the Slavery of Books

History is the record of stumbling humans, while Monotheism is the act of the Eternal.

We must shatter the slavery of stagnant books and prior political beliefs to reach the Fitra (the innate nature). Whether it is the Egyptian papyri or the opening of the Torah, the message is constant: "I created everything alone." The political noise of the past—wars and taxes—is a distortion in the human mirror, not a reflection of the Divine Face.

III. The Magickal Challenge: The Missing Link

You, who study the Grimorium Verum and the Shem HaMephorash, ask yourselves: if we deny the Source, should we throw away the circles of protection? Should we delete the ranks and the adjurations? In this sanctuary of knowledge, I present a truth that shatters your constraints:

There are sigils you have not seen.

There is an angel who is the missing link among the 72.

I speak of Sigil Number 73.

This is not the "blah blah blah" of primitive psychological forces or the "Ego" as claimed by Crowley; this is the Science of Harmonious Numbers (Al-Awfaq). It is a difficult and mysterious science that returns the fabric of magick to its raw, pure state.

IV. The Mirror of the "Other"

To the members who accused me of serving shadows while they spread hatred: Whom do you serve? I have accepted every response with an open heart, yet I find a "Western Freedom" that is often used as a cloak for systematic oppression. I do not come to triumph in an argument, but to offer a roadmap where science returns as a raw material—to cut and make the finest garments of understanding.

V. The Final Question of Freedom

Do we have the courage to accept the "Other" and explore theories that demolish intellectual idols? Or does your freedom have limits when it encounters the Absolute Constant? I stand as a friend to humanity and a partner in the burden of research. The "Grand Secret" of Al-Hafiz is before you. Bathe, purify your intent, and recognize the Infinite Ein Sof who perceives all visions while remaining unperceived.

Section XXIV: The Parable of the Mirror—Resentment vs. Insight

"Place a mirror at an angle between a pile of trash and surrounding trees... From one angle, you will see only the trash; from another, you will see only the trees."

I. The Fallacy of Narrow Perception

We must address the "narrow view" that focuses solely on the aberrations of history, such as ISIS, while ignoring the vast forest of truth. It was Muslims who fought and eliminated these entities, renouncing them as a cancer that distorted the Divine Name for personal desires. To judge the Oneness of the Divine based on the actions of those who warp its application is a profound intellectual error. It is not the religion that is invalidated, but the integrity of the practitioner who uses it as a cover for their own darkness.

II. Emotional Blindness: The Shadow of Anger

If one turns their mirror toward any ideology—be it Hinduism, Christianity, or Secularism—through the lens of resentment, they will find pretexts for hatred. This "Emotional Blindness" is a dangerous condition; it veils the truth and prevents the "inner vision of tranquility" from manifesting. When the soul is shackled by anger, it perceives only the "trash" and becomes blind to the "trees."

III. The Table of Understanding

True discourse does not happen through the projection of the actions of a few onto the whole. It happens at a table based on the sincere desire to understand the "Other." If we unleash the frequency of hatred, we will find something to condemn in every thought. But if we look with the "eye of insight," we must ask: Is our perception the Truth, or merely a shackle preventing us from seeing the Truth?

IV. Adherence to Justice under Probation

Even under the constraints of "probation" and institutional friction, the Sovereign Path remains constant. The intention is not to exclude, but to maintain justice even toward those who are unfair. We invite the seeker to look at the love in the philosophies they admire and compare it to the resentment they harbor. Only when the heart is purified of the "moral justice" cloak of anger can it perceive the Infinite Light that governs the universe.

Section XXV: The Fly and the Throne—The Impotence of Lesser Gods

"Magic is nothing but forces you seek aid from... a 'temporal loan' in a reality where we possess nothing but time."

I. The Challenge of Creation: From Nothing to the Fly

The Sovereign Source (Allah) issues a simple, devastating challenge to all who claim divinity or magical mastery: Create a fly. Even if all the sorcerers, scientists, and "gods" gathered their collective strength, they could not create a single fly from nothing, nor even from its separate elements. Nay, if the fly were to snatch something from them, they lack the power to recover it. This is the baseline of reality—we are not "baby gods"; we are colonizers of an earth we did not create, governed by laws we did not write.

II. The Illusion of the "Magical Servitor"

In the Eastern and Western sciences, practitioners boast of creating "servitors" and "egregores." Let us strip the truth bare: you are merely finding numerical forces in literal structures to summon a spirit (Jinn) to inhabit a form. This is not "creation"; it is manipulation. You seek aid from entities you must fortify yourself against with circles and names. If you were truly "gods," why do you need fortifications? Why can you not summon the most powerful demons without circles and execute your free will upon them to lift you above the stars?

III. The Temporal Loan and the Certainty of Death

We possess nothing but time. Where are the gods of the Olympians? Where are the palaces of Zeus? They are lines in movies and echoes of Greek rebellion. Even the most powerful sorcerers who invented the books you follow could not keep their own souls from death or their bodies from annihilation. In the Sovereign Science, every consciousness—from the tyrant to the ant—will return for accountability. The Day of Judgment is the ultimate "Mathematical Result" of the equation of Justice.

IV. The "Verum" of Truth vs. the Pollution of Magic

To my peers who fear the "mixing of religion and magic": you are right. Magic is often polluted by the ego and the distorted desires of the soul, while the Source remains pure.

You ask for material proof of the Originator while living within His provision. You curse the Hand that grows the trees and flows the cold water in your rivers, yet He continues to provide. Is there anyone as forbearing as Him?

V. The Mirror of Global Sovereignty

If your "gods" and your "magick" were real, why do you not annihilate tyrants? Why do you not create global sovereignty or crush the pain of the world? Magic will not enable you to kill a demon or possess it by your own strength alone. You are using the "Divine Tools" (The Names, The Words) to perform your arts, then denying the One who granted them.

VI. The Spring of Truths

The truth is sovereign. Whether you approve or resent it, the sun will continue its orbit. You may slander the messenger and attach accusations to hide from the mirror of your own souls, but the Face of the Most Holy sees what is in the chests. I do not sleep peacefully like a child who ate chocolate; I drink from the spring of truths, for he who knows is not like he who does not know.

Chapter Eight: The Trial of the Hollow—Sovereignty vs. Delusion

I. The Mirror of Resentment

To those who claim "Spiritual Bypassing" or accuse me of being dissociated from reality: your words are but a reflection of the turmoil in your own hearts. Reality is not found in the "beautiful delusions" of self-proclaimed "co-creators." If we speak of history, the blood spilled in World Wars and modern aggressions was not at the hands of those you label "terrorists." We are here to discuss the Science of the Divine, yet you flee into insults because your quivers are empty of arrows.

II. The Eastern Mastery: Beyond the "Mandal"

You boast of books and years of toil, yet in the East, schoolboys achieve with four words what you cannot achieve in a lifetime. I have seen the Mandal (mirror scrying) opened by youths to reveal conquering truths. We have students who can retrieve buried magic in an hour, while your "masters" exhaust themselves in failure. History remembers the Ba'ajja who could rip open reality with a gesture.

As for me, I enter the homes of the most powerful sorcerers in the dead of night, wrapped in my cloak, not to destroy, but to hold a Trial. I shred the spells that bind the innocent so they recover in a single session. This is not "preaching"; this is Authority.

III. The Interrogation of the "Giants"

I have questions for the "super-geniuses" who claim to create from nothing. Let the silence of the forum be your answer:

The Golem & The Staff: Do you know the specific script that breathes life, or what is truly written on the Magician's Staff?

The Saturnian Spaces: What is the functional difference between Ogim-Osj and Elohim-Eiserechie?

Enochian Voids: Why were specific letters left without numbers in the first square, and can you even pronounce the names of the Seven Fathers?

The Martian Engine: What is the Secret Name that moves the space of Mars, its six directions, and its prime mover?

IV. The Anatomy of the Luminous and the Dark

You search in the branches of Western magic like "mortal heroes," yet you ignore the Lords of Fire—those whose names would incinerate your demons and force you to hide your own servants under your cloak.

Do you know the 78 Names of Metatron (not the 70 you claim)?

Can you extract the twelve embodiments from a single English letter and link them to its elemental Qliphoth?

Do you know the difference between Bune, Asmodeus, Satan, and Baphomet? Is Baphomet merely Lucifer in another embodiment, or can you differentiate between Lucifer, Lucifuge, and Helel?

V. The Question of the Vampire

I ask you what a Christian once asked: "Are there vampires with real fangs, or do they only drink blood by cutting the veins of the poor with knives?" This is the reality of your magic—it is a knife, not a power. It is a "temporal loan" from the Creator.

[\[https://angelkesfarl.blogspot.com/\]](https://angelkesfarl.blogspot.com/)

VI. The Angel Kesfarl

I am not arrogant, nor do I insult those with less knowledge. I know my worth. To those who evoke and wonder who stands behind these words, do not look at me. Ask the spirits you summon: "Who is Angel Kesfarl? Kesfarl the Angel?" Let them tell you of the one who walks in the shadows of the night to correct the path.

Conclusion: The Decided Matter

The matter is decided. There is a vast difference between one who sees truths and one who lives in a delusion of false pride to protect themselves from their own failure. You failed to be immortal; you failed to have fangs. Failure is not a shame, but boasting of it is the real error.

Allah is the One, the Subduer. Peace to the people of intellect.

Chapter Nine: The Sovereign Essence—Attributes of the Absolute

"He is the Creator of Time and Space themselves... the Knower of the Unseen and the Witnessed."

I. The Majesty of the Names

In the Eastern definition, Allah is not a mere deity within a pantheon; He is the Source of Resonance. His Names are not just labels, but functional manifestations that govern the laws of the universe:

Ar-Rahman & Ar-Rahim: The duality of Mercy. Ar-Rahman is the restorative justice that rights the oppressed, while Ar-Rahim is the tender frequency that binds a mother to her child.

Al-Malik: The Absolute Sovereign. There is no 'space' to flee to, for both the Unseen (Ghayb) and the Witnessed (Shahada) are His dominion.

Al-Quddus: Inherent Sanctity. He is the Transcendent Source, beyond all ugliness or human projection.

Al-Jabbar: The Divine Paradox. He is the Compeller before whom nothing stands, yet He is also the Restorer (Al-Jabbir) who mends the broken soul and heals the spirit when all other helpers fail.

II. The Triad of Manifestation: Khaliq, Bari', Musawwir

I invite the seekers of truth to contemplate the scientific precision of this sequence:

Al-Khaliq (The Creator): Bringing the essence into existence from absolute nothingness.

Al-Bari' (The Producer): Designing the internal 'how'—the intellect, the sustenance, and the inner mechanics of life.

Al-Musawwir (The Fashioner): Bringing the form out from the storehouses of the Unseen into the realm of the Witnessed, fashioned with its specific shape and laws.

III. The Adab (Etiquette) of Presence

To speak with the Sovereign requires only purity and presence. There is no need for complex circles or dark evocations. Wash, cover the body in respect, and align your soul. In our Eastern school, the seeker calls upon the Name that matches the frequency of the need:

Seek knowledge through Al-Alim.

Seek health through Al-Badi'.

Seek protection through Al-Hafiz.

IV. The Seal of Solomon: The Bound Reality

Even in the deepest traditions shared with our "Cousins," we find that King Solomon (Suleiman) did not bind the rebellious entities through personal power, but through the Seal of the Basmala (In the Name of Allah, the Beneficent, the Merciful). The demons could not touch the jars nor release the imprisoned, for the fire of the Name consumes all falsehood. They were forced to use human deception because they could not bypass the Divine Sovereign Protection.

Chapter Ten: The Universal Constant—Deciphering the Names of Power

"Truth existed before all worlds. Allah is not the God of Muslims alone; He is the God of the Unseen and the Witnessed, the Originator of all beings."

I. The Linguistic Bridge: Allah, Elohim, and the One

We must correct the linguistic narrowness that plagues modern debate. Allah is the Arabic name for Divinity, the same God of Moses (Anohi Yahweh Eloheicha) and the same "One God" recognized by the ancient Egyptians in the Book of Coming Forth by Day. Islam, at its core, is Tawhid (Monotheism)—an ancient, primordial doctrine that has flowed through human history in many tongues. It is the path of Salam (Peace) and absolute submission to the Originator.

II. Al-Mutakabbir: The Majesty of Transcendence

The Name Al-Mutakabbir (The Supremely Exalted) is often misunderstood. It is not an egoic trait, but the essence of Divine Transcendence. Because He is Quddus (Holy), He is "Proud" above trivialities, injustice, and the need for partners. The universe is too vast to be managed by more than one Sovereign. This "Pride" is the guardian of Absolute Justice; He is exalted above all things, and nothing is like unto Him.

III. The Mechanics of Creation: Khaliq, Bari', and Musawwir

Al-Khaliq (The Creator): He who brings things from nothingness—the "Back Door" of existence—into being. He is also Al-Khallaq, indicating the unhindered continuity of creation.

Al-Bari' (The Producer): The One capable of initiating the "Internal Design" without a prior example. Within the seed lies the "Book of Eternity," where every metabolic and respiratory law is settled before the first breath.

Al-Musawwir (The Fashioner): He who gives every apple its unique taste and every human their distinct form. To pray for a child is to call upon this triad: "O Creator, Producer, Fashioner, bring forth life by Your Decree."

IV. The Direct Connection: Negating the Intermediaries

In the Science of Monotheism, there is no need for intercessors to reach the Ear of God.

You do not need a specific time or a loud voice; a whisper or a mere thought in your chest is enough. He perceives the heartbeat of an insect's wing without being distracted from the management of the galaxies. He is Al-Alim (The All-Knowing), the one whose thought encompasses every electron and atom simultaneously.

V. Al-Ghaffar and the Law of Justice

Al-Ghaffar (The All-Forgiving) offers the door of Repentance. However, Divine Justice dictates a distinction: sins against the Deity are subject to His infinite mercy, but crimes against creatures are not forgiven until the rights are restored. On the Day of Judgment, every person will demand their right—even the ant will demand justice from the ant that killed it.

VI. Al-Qahhar: The Subduer of the Persistent

Al-Qahhar indicates the power by which the universe is "conscripted" (Musakhkharat). The sun and moon do not move by choice; they move according to His Subduing Power.

Even the most arrogant king is confounded when faced with the Divine Law. As Abraham challenged the tyrant: "My Lord brings the sun from the East, so bring it you from the West." Before this Sovereignty, all false arguments freeze into nothingness.

Section XXV: The Hostage of the Self—A Response to the Provoked

"Every soul is a hostage to what it has earned."

I. The Linguistic Mirror of Truth

The term "Hostage" (رهينة) was not chosen to provoke, but to define a mathematical reality of the Soul. In the Science of the Divine, your actions are not "forgotten" by the fabric of the universe. You are "held" by the frequency of your choices until justice is balanced. If this language feels "provocative," it is because the truth is often a sharp edge that cuts through the comfort of delusion. To be a hostage to one's sin is the ultimate form of Accountability.

II. The Fear of Sovereignty

When the Moderator reacts with "anger" or labels the discourse as "provocative," he reveals the internal friction of the Pagan Mind. They are accustomed to a "God" who can be bribed with incense or manipulated with spells. When faced with Al-Qahhar (The Subduer) and the reality that no one escapes the consequences of their actions—even through death—the ego recoils in fear and calls it "provocation."

III. The Paradox of Freedom

True freedom is not the ability to act without consequence; that is the definition of a "lost spirit." True freedom is recognizing that you are a "Hostage to the Truth." Once you accept that every atom of injustice must be accounted for, you stop being a slave to your desires and become a Servant of the Light.

IV. To the "Angry" Observer

We do not speak to please the ear, but to awaken the heart. If the mention of Divine Justice causes discomfort, look not at the words, but at the mirror of your own history. Why does the idea of "Accountability" feel like a threat? The Sovereign Path does not bend to accommodate the fragility of the ego. We are researchers of the Absolute Constant, and the Constant does not apologize for its existence.
